Welcome to my world

Good Morning Everyone,

I woke before 6am this morning, subconsciously before the floor boards woke me from above I guess?

The rain arrived pretty soon after I finished the update last night & it is still raining, though very lightly. Think they are predicting low cloud again for the region for today.

Not much housework left for me to do today as I got it all done yesterday, so I only have the bedroom to do this morning. But if it doesn't brighten up it will be back to putting the bedding in the tumble drier again.

Image 1: The current paper collection comes into its second week today, so a way to go with that.

Image 2: A new template for you, this is a mini mail tray, which if you make it with cardboard will make great stash storage? As always there are two versions, one for the UK & the other for the US.

Images 3 & 4: The second pair of these sheets for Father's Day, this one includes the decoupage topper from the card kit last week & the other is the paper which will work with the card kit or this decoupage, as will the paper I uploaded last week.

Image 5: I uploaded the first of these 'experiments' last week where I used individual flowers to create a decorative edge to a shape left blank for you to add whatever you wish. The previous one had another panel at the back, with this one I have decoupage the entire panel so you can add your 3D pads to give it dimension on your project.

Image 6: The next in this series of Alpine flower decoupage toppers, this is the eleventh of sixteen so there are five left on file still to upload.

Images 7 & 8: Something new for the kid's page now, the first a sheet of various coloured mirror imaged dog characters, the second sheet a background paper using the characters.

Images 9 & 10: Another couple of sheets to add to the men's sailing series, here I created a decoupage card kit for you though you could also use it on a larger card as a topper.

Then I thought that a landscape format backing paper would be more useful in this case, where I used the boats as a border along both top & bottom.

This gives you the opportunity to make four landscape A6 cards from this one sheet of backing paper.

Image 11: I hadn't realised that I had uploaded one of these oval decoupages a while ago, so when I upload this one I will move the previous one up the page so you can find it.

I know how much you favour flowers so I am always trying to come up with new images/designs/idea's to upload for you.

Image 12: The final one of a trio of stamping panels I cut from the current paper collection that I will use as the bonus sheet to upload along with this newsletter this morning.

Catch up with you all again later.
