Welcome to my world

Good Morning Everyone,

We had a little bit of rain for about half an hour yesterday, not heavy enough to satisfy the needs of the gardeners & farmers but probably just enough to reawaken my little front lawn, which has been dormant for several weeks due to the dry spell, even the weeds stunted right now.

I had a mega session working at the computer all day yesterday, so a whole bunch of new stuff on file ready to upload for you at some point.

There are a couple of things on the calendar for the coming week, Michelle is dropping in after work on Thursday for a catch up around 2pm, & Friday my sister & I are heading to that little cinema along the coast to see 'Book Club'.

Image 1: The final week of the current 'touch of magic' paper collection, but I now have a couple ready to follow up with, so it is simply a case of deciding which one to use.

Image 2: Another of the decoupage oval sheets to add to your collection, there are four more to collect,

Images 3 & 4: As I promised last week the third of this set of four card kits with envelopes, this particular set is all in yellow.

Image 5: I was messing about a couple of weeks ago trying to figure out how this was done, I use copier paper to work out the folds & then measure everything so I can create the digital download.

So a cute facet box template that forms the shape of a cut diamond once completed. Again I don't have a sample but I am confident that it will work out because of all of the prep work I did on the copier paper.

Image 6: I dipped back into the rose files again this morning & chose this pretty rose decoupage topper sheet for you.

Images 7 & 8: I have had this set on file for quite a while so thought it was time I got it uploaded.

Firstly I cut the original image from its damaged background & placed it on a new, undamaged one before punching it out. Then I added a backing mat to match the brolly before creating the decoupage layers.

Then I used that final red brolly layer to create a full sheet of background to accompany the decoupage sheet.

Images 9 & 10: The forth & final pairing of this set, again a card kit with accompanying envelope. An almost identical flower to the previous one, so you could probably mix & match the envelopes around to suit yourself, but then with the set all being in yellow, you could mix & match all four envelopes to suit yourself.

Image 11: The bonus sheet for this morning is this flower fairy decoupage sheet. It is pretty intricate so you will probably need to get a new blade in your craft knife!

As usual Sunday is weekend housework day so a short update to look forward to this afternoon.

Catch up with you all again then.
