

The Paper Craft Tutor.com

Welcome to my world

Sunday, 24 June 2018

Good Morning Everyone,

It looks like a beautiful day outside & the breeze seems to have dropped since yesterday, so maybe I will get some time out in the garden later?

I am hoping they have the weather forecast right & I can get some quality time out in the garden in the coming week, but being on the North Sea coastline often means we achieve the temperatures but the off shore breeze makes it too cool to sit out.

There is a family funeral this coming Friday morning, but that is the only thing I have on the calendar thus far in the coming week.

Image 1: I have kept the size of the new Mono Flowers paper collection down a bit by keeping it simple, as you see. So basically once I created the design I simply kept changing the colour palette to come up with a rainbow of colours for you.

Image 2: This is the first sheet in a little set of six cards – all identical apart from the colour - & a decoupage sheet for the top of a box that matches the cards.

So if you want to create a nice gift set you can, I may even get around to typing up the notes for the box before I finish uploading them all.

Image 3: The next sheet in the oval decoupage set, obviously this one is a poppy – I love poppies! There are three more left on file for you to collect.

Image 4: After I uploaded the last sheets to the kids page a friend asked if I could decoupage some of the little critters, so this is the first of those sheets.

Images 5 & 6: As I promised last week, as there were only three of the Alpine flower decoupage sheets left on file I am uploading two this week to speed up the process.

Image 7: I like these flower paintings & have used them before, but they were also perfect to create a design set around.

Back to the four images & four background papers with this set, only this time I haven't added a frame or panel behind the images so you can use a contrasting colour to make them stand out from their background, if you wish.

Image 8: I was messing about a while ago with some digital punches again & came up with this pretty butterfly which is both the positive & negative merged together, but I have added an outline to the positive.

I went on from there to create the background in order to create this pretty decoupage card kit, which I have to admit I am rather taken with, so I hope you like it as much as I do.

Image 9: I only created two sheets of stamping panels from this new paper collection & this is the first of those.

I simply punched out the shape from a few sheets of the collection & then from a white panel & added that in order to give you a place to position your stamp.

Unlike the previous one's I have created I have not faded out the front panel as it just didn't look right with this collection somehow?

Catch up with you all again later.

Rita x