

The Paper Craft Tutor.com

Welcome to my world

Sunday, August 12, 2018

Good Morning!

Looks like it has been raining for much of the night & it is still coming down heavily this morning, so some much needed relief for the farmers, their crops & their live stock.

The landscapes, trees, parks & gardens will also welcome some decent rainfall, though I doubt if many parents will welcome it quite so enthusiastically - with another four weeks still to go of the school summer holidays!

Image 1: The current Ivory Stripe paper collection still has more than twenty sheets on file, so another three weeks to go. I must have got carried away designing these so I will most likely get bored uploading them & start deleting them from the file, which is why I try to limit the collections to a maximum of thirty sheets!

Image 2: There is a little group of four of these decoupage sheets to collect, & you will definitely need your craft knife at hand for the final layer of each one!

Image 3: Here is a fun little Christmas sheet where I have given you a mixture of greeting panels to suit the person you are sending it to.

Image 4: I have noted that you appear to like this form of decoupage judging by the footfall to that page, so here is another one for you. This one appears to be a housemaid doing the washing? I had space left on the sheet so added a couple of mirrored mini images to this one for you too.

Image 5: I created this paper especially to team up with the following sheet, though I did design a little bunch of mono images that I have dubbed Vintage Office, so this will work with those too when I upload them.

Image 6: A pretty straight forward, not to mention easy to cut out, decoupage sheet for you now, that will team up with the paper from image 5. You could add a hand written or stamped greeting to the paper feeding out of the machine or even pencil in a little heart maybe?

This is a free download from www.the-paper-craft-tutor.com

Faceted sphere box template
This is a free download from www.the-paper-craft-tutor.com

Image 7: Another little gift box template for you now, though I really must sit down for a day & work up some more templates for you as the file is on empty now!

This is a free download from www.the-paper-craft-tutor.com

Image 8: Again a Christmas image that I used last year & just hope that I have used it in a different way this time! So Santa dropping off the gift while the kids sleep through.

Image 9: While I was on my little mono journey I came up with this little bunch of three papers, so I have grouped them into one file to make it easier for you to download them.

Image 10: The bonus sheet for this morning is one from the metallics that I was also playing around with recently. A bit of an optical illusion this one as the white panel is actually on the top of the two gold one's, but the eye tends to see a frame?

10

This is a free download from www.the-paper-craft-tutor.com

So you can use these little beauties to frame an image, photo or greeting, or stamp in the white panel, link a couple together over a particularly nice feature on a background etc. etc.

Okay, that is the preview of what I plan to upload in the coming week, so I am heading for the shower now before I get started on the weekend housework.

Rita x