

The Paper Craft Tutor.com

Welcome to my world

Sunday, November 11, 2018

Good Morning All,

Another Sunday already! The time seems to be flying by in the build up to Christmas & I still only have one of the gifts that I need!

Going to send my great nieces who live down south Next gift cards so their Mum can take them clothes shopping, as sadly they don't believe any longer.

I am also arranging to go shopping with my nephews partner here to buy new clothes for their two, so that only leaves my nieces three.....

The newsletter is totally crammed this morning so a lot of previews to explain, so I had better get down to business.

Image 1: The current paper collection Starry Skies is about half uploaded, so another couple of weeks or so left on file.

Image 2: The other modern Christmas card kit that I mentioned last week, as I said at the time oddly I came up with them at different times?

Here there is only one main star that I have decoupled ready for you to layer up, but I have given you some smaller ones to play with, plus a blank greeting panel in case you want to use one of your own.

Image 3: The final card kit in the cake pictures, though I do have a couple of layered topper sheets still on file for you.

Images 4 & 5: Another of the layered & mirrored toppers from the costume file, but this time I will be uploading the backing sheet that I created to accompany it.

Images 6 & 7: As above but using three different images that I have layered for you, with one of the backing papers that I designed to accompany the whole set.

You may have realized by now that I am previewing way more than the usual seven uploads plus the paper collection - & I still haven't decided which will be the bonus sheet/s yet. But when I do decide I will simply upload the extras to their appropriate page on the website this morning, after I publish this newsletter.

Image 8: Another of those one page 2019 calendars that I came up with, simple but pretty.

Image 9: A proper Christmas decoupage now featuring Santa himself, I was thinking of trying to cut off the original greeting but in the end decided to keep it after all.

Image 10: Just a stray backing paper that I have had on file for ages, as you can see it is a Christmas theme with holly leaves with berries.

Below that is Image 11 as I couldn't fit it in otherwise: One of those oval decoupages that I have been creating for you, I thought you may have been bored with them by now but the page still has a following, so I thought I would upload another one to refresh the page a bit.

Images 12 & 13: More sheets that I have had on file for ages are these Seasonal Greetings, in a variety of different colours & I have decided to use these as the bonus sheets to accompany this newsletter this morning.

Not sure what I am going to do with my day, as I only have the bed to change this morning as I did all of the housework yesterday.....?

Catch up with you all later as usual.

Rita x

