

The Paper Craft Tutor.com

Welcome to my world

Sunday, December 30, 2018

Good morning everyone,

It will be 2019 by the time I sit down here to write the next newsletter, so I will take this opportunity to wish you all good health & much happiness for the coming New Year.

It has been a quiet year for me with not even a London trip to reflect upon, though I am planning one of those in the coming year. It could get at least two package holidays in the sunshine for the cost of just the hotel stay in London, or the same amount of time in New York including the flights – but it is what it is & the reason I can't visit as regularly as I would like.

Image 1: The current pansy papers collection comes into its second week so a way to go with those yet.

Image 2: I think I am creating more oval decoupage sheets than anything else at the moment, but I have simplified this latest bunch for you to remove even the final layer of fiddly cutting, as I suspect their simplicity is the reason that they have become so popular. Here the image depicts a young girl arranging a vase of flowers.

Image 3: I found a few more vintage American university posters in my stash so have been decoupageing those ready to upload to the men's page. Here a team of rowers which I have decoupage down to the final layer, for you to rebuild on your project.

Images 4 & 5: The last two sheets from this little set; the first is a decoupage card topper – with an extra couple of images to use elsewhere on your project, & the second is the background paper I designed to accompany all of the sheets in the set.

Image 6: I came across this fairy castle in one of my resource files & realised how easy it would be to create a decoupage from it, so that is exactly what I did. So a nice easy one to cut out & I think it would look great layered up with 3D pads as part of a project for a little girl.

Image 7: I really love how these canine toppers came out & they were real easy to do once I had created the double layered frame. There are another couple on file for you still to upload, but I will begin creating some for cat lovers in the coming week.

Image 8: This sheet has been on file for a while & it is such a pretty image, much too pretty to remain in the file.

I have created three different shaped toppers from the same image & then mirror imaged each one so you have three pairs of each. I like doing the mirror images as it gives you more scope to create fancy fold cards & such.

Images 9 & 10: The next diary date is Valentine's Day on February 14th, so that was the first subject I started work on when I was finished creating stuff for Christmas. So here you have a really cute image that I have decoupage, & then I used the final layer of that decoupage to create a backing paper to match.

Image 11: The bonus sheet for this morning is another oval decoupage design.

Rita x