Welcome to my world

A very good morning to you all,

I am gradually getting back into a proper work ethic again, I haven't worked every single day this week but most. I have also made a few cards & played with my beads a bit too, so it made for a good balance.

The weather has been dry & sunny all week too, so I finally got out back & tidied up the garden ready for spring. The daffodils, which appeared from nowhere a couple of years ago, have blossomed so that is definitely just around the corner now.

Image 1: We are half way through the Embossed Silk paper collection now, so another couple of weeks still to run with that.

Image 2: The first of the two rose card kits for the coming week is this hint of pink bloom.

Image 3: With Mother's Day just around the corner now I returned to the vintage fashion resource images. I created three decoupage sheets where I enhanced the colours in the images, with Mother's Day in mind, but you can obviously use them as you see fit.

Images 4 & 5: Another couple of sheets for your Country Cottage Garden now, a duo decoupage & a paper, I have a bunch of envelopes & papers to publish direct to page this morning from the same folder, & then we are done.

There is one more big folder on file ready to begin uploading soon & will warn you in advance when I am about to begin uploading those, so you can have a folder ready.

Image 6: The second of the rose card kits for the coming week & this is a really pretty image & would work beautifully for Mother's Day, but also for any feminine celebrations throughout the year.

Image 7: This is from the Kate Greenaway resource images & is a pretty little picture of a mum & her little one. As I am aware of how much you like the oval decoupage format I do try to create a bunch from time to time & this is one of those. This one is perfect for the upcoming Mothering Sunday design.

Image 8: A springtime daffodil oval decoupage; I used these daffodils in another design recently but it is the prettiest image of them that I have! So useful for Easter, Mother's Day, or indeed any other springtime occasion you may have coming up.

Image 9: Another design from the vintage fashion resource images now with this duo sheet of framed toppers with a half sheet of matching backing paper. I created four of these sheets so I will try to remember to get them all online in the coming weeks!

Image 10: The bonus sheet for this morning is this Easter duo decoupage toppers design, featuring a chick.
